The Oregon Directory of American Indian Resources (ODAIR) is a biennial publication that contains documents pertinent to the federally recognized Oregon Tribes and to the Legislative Commission on Indian Services. It also contains current contact information for Commission members, tribal governments, and state agencies, as well as relevant Indian resources available nationwide. The 2013-2015 ODAIR is a 67-page document available online for download and reproduction.

BACKGROUND ON THE COMMISSION

The Legislative Commission on Indian Services was created by statute in 1975 to advise the Legislative Assembly and other Oregon officials and agencies on the needs of American Indian people in the state. The thirteen members of the Commission are appointed pursuant to ORS 172.100 et seq., to two-year, staggered terms of office. These appointments are made jointly by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President of the Senate and are based on nominations submitted by American Indian tribes and communities in designated areas of the state.

All nine of the federally recognized Tribes in Oregon have a representative on the Commission. These Tribes are the Burns Paiute Tribe, the Confederated Tribes of Coos, Lower Umpqua and Siuslaw Indians, the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde Community, the Confederated Tribes of Siletz, the Confederated Tribes of Umatilla Indian Reservation, the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, the Cow Creek Band of Umpqua Indians, the Klamath Tribes, and the Coquille Tribe. Two geographic areas are also represented on the Commission. These are the Portland Urban Area and the Willamette Valley area. Two legislative members, a senator and a representative, are also seated on the Commission.

The specific statutory responsibilities of the Commission include: 1) Compiling information about services for Indians; 2) Developing and sponsoring programs to inform Indians of services available to them; 3) Developing and sponsoring programs to make Indian needs and concerns known to the public and private agencies whose activities affect Indians; 4) Encouraging and supporting these public and private agencies to expand and improve their services for Indians; 5) Assessing programs of state agencies operating for the benefit of Indians and making recommendations to the appropriate agencies for improving those programs; 6) Reporting biennially to the Governor and the Legislative Assembly on all matters of concern to Indians in Oregon.

In order to carry out these statutory responsibilities, the Commission holds meetings to familiarize its members with current problems American Indians are facing and to discuss possible solutions. Often the Commission invites representatives of state or federal agencies to discuss their programs as they affect the Indian population in the state. The Commission also monitors legislation affecting Indians, both while it is being considered by the Legislature and after it becomes law, and assists in presenting information to the Legislature on issues of importance to American Indians in Oregon.

The Legislative Commission on Indian Services embodies the State of Oregon's commitment to recognize the existence of Oregon's Indian communities and their needs. Prior to its establishment, there was no suitable mechanism in state government to consider Indian needs and concerns directly. With the establishment of the Commission, this significant barrier has been eliminated. The Commission serves as the primary forum in which Indian needs are considered; it serves as the conduit by which concerns are channeled through the appropriate network; it serves as the point of access for finding out about state government programs and policies; and, it serves as a catalyst for bringing about change where it is needed.

The Commission actively promotes intergovernmental cooperation and coordination as a means of enhancing the well being of Indian people in the state. It is the Commission's belief that one of the best ways in which to assist Indians is to help them help themselves. Therefore, while the Commission will often take the lead in addressing needs and concerns, it will also encourage Indians to find their own solutions. The Commission recognizes that it will not solve many of the problems Indians encounter. However, with the support of Indians and state government, legislative and administrative solutions can be developed to meet many of these needs.

CURRENT STATUS OF STATE-TRIBAL RELATIONS

Oregon's Approach to State-Tribal Relations

Karen Quigley, Executive Director, Legislative Commission on Indians Services

Nearly 40 years ago the State of Oregon recognized the need to have a permanent point of contact and on-going forum for consideration of tribal-state issues and created the Legislative Commission on Indian Services (LCIS), an advisory body of 13 Tribal Leaders and Legislators. Fifteen years ago Oregon was the first state in the nation to pass a state-tribal government-to-government relations law which emphasizes the critical importance of establishing and maintaining a variety of ways to learn enough about each other's structures, policies, programs, initiatives, traditions and history to inform decision-makers in both state and tribal government as well as to provide opportunities for their respective programs, departments and staff to exchange relevant information and work together on shared interests. Both LCIS and Oregon's ORS 182.162-.168 have established Oregon's national reputation of cooperation with tribal governments and efforts to reduce litigation. Avoided legal costs are just one of the benefits of good relations. All Oregonians, especially those in rural communities where Tribes are located, have benefited from some positive partnerships that LCIS and Oregon's law have fostered. Some local governments also have a history of exploring ways to cooperate with local Tribes to expand opportunities and provide services in a time of scarce resources in a way that enhances the health, safety and welfare of their citizens, tribal members and non-tribal members. Other local governments may be interested in exploring the same possibility.

LCIS is available to support those on-going efforts on the part of local governments as it does with state agencies. The Commission has an office at the State Capitol which serves as a day-to-day information clearinghouse. The LCIS Executive Director is available via phone, e-mail or for meetings and trainings to suggest ways to initiate, improve or expand interactions with tribal governments.

Here are three suggestions learned from the Oregon Approach that local governments may want to consider. They may serve to increase the likelihood of positive interactions now and in the future. Following these three suggestions is a partial checklist of steps in the process that have worked for state agencies which may work for local governments.

1. Appreciate and Respect the Legal and Historical Basis of Tribal Governments:

Tribal sovereign governments- like other governments- means at a minimum that each of Oregon's nine federally recognized tribal governments has a distinctive legal and political status separate from other sovereigns including other tribal governments. Like other governments, each tribal sovereign has the inherent authority to govern its people and see to their health, safety and welfare, decide requirements for citizenship, pass laws & regulations, tax and spend, create infrastructure and provide governmental services to its citizen members. Tribal governments are not "granted sovereignty." Since the adoption of the U.S. Constitution, Tribes have been acknowledged in the Constitution's treaty and commerce clause. Tribes conducted business as sovereigns- including activities reserved for sovereigns such as signing treaties with the U.S. - before the State of Oregon came into existence in 1859. Tribes, therefore, are the oldest form of sovereigns in Oregon by thousands of years.

One additional feature to bear in mind is the unique relationship that tribal governments have with the federal government based on the federal government's "trust responsibility" and the U.S. Supreme Court determination of the status of Tribes as "domestic, dependent nations." ("domestic"—i.e., not foreign and "dependent"—i.e., having a special relationship with the federal government separate from the States). This may come into play in some local government-tribal government interactions such as the fee-to-trust process, treaty rights, federal commitments to support tribal self-determination, tribal authority, in certain cases permitting Tribes to get Treatment as a State status regarding Clean Air Act and Clean Water Act implementation, as well as other regulatory authority that may be of interest to local government with jurisdiction of lands adjoining tribal trust or reservation lands. Of note is the potential for federal monies that may flow into an area of the state because of an-going commitment to a Tribe because, e.g., a county is designated by Congressional Act as one or another Tribes' "service area". Other reasons local government might want to establish a productive relationship with local tribal governments is because of cultural resources which are protected under state and federal law on lands within a counties borders, infrastructure which a tribe may develop that offers enhanced economic or population growth opportunity to a local jurisdiction (like a water treatment plant, a charter school, a health clinic a tribal enterprise that will create hundreds of new jobs for individuals who will become local government taxpayers and may no longer need county services for the unemployed or underemployed).

2. In order to conduct effective government-to-government relations, one must learn about the distinction between federally recognized tribal governments in Oregon and in other states, non-federally recognized tribal governments, Indian organizations, tribal members of one of Oregon's nine federally recognized tribal governments, tribal members of Tribes in other states and self-identified Indians.

Oregon's Approach focuses on the nine federally recognized tribal governments in Oregon and effective relations depends on appropriate dialogue with a tribal government's duly authorized representative on the subject at hand. State and local government agencies (as well as legislators and federal representatives, for that matter) seem to have no trouble with this concept when dealing with each other (e.g., you know that Deschutes county can't speak for Klamath county, or that DEQ cannot speak for the Department of Agriculture, or that the Governor of California cannot speak for Oregon,) but often it seems state and local government representatives may not take the time or attention to behave in the same way towards tribal members, tribal governments and Indians in general. Serious misunderstandings can be avoided when we appreciate where all governments share some attributes in terms of certain leaders, departments or individuals having specific authority even though each government may have its own structure, laws, rules, jurisdiction, culture and traditions (including different state agencies and local governments individual "culture").

Oregon's Indian population is small—approximately 1.6 % of the population—but the legal status of tribal governments as sovereigns (with rights and responsibilities for critical natural, cultural, economic and social resources within the State's borders) makes on-going State-Tribal dialogue a necessity and, likewise, suggests the importance of a "good neighbor" policy with respective local governments. In the current weak economy, seeking the most efficient provider of governmental services—avoiding duplication and supporting efforts to create jobs (particularly in rural areas) is a priority for the State, Tribes and local government. The ability to provide infrastructure improvements, educational and social services and natural and cultural resources management may be augmented in several of the state's or a county's most highly distressed areas because of a Tribe's ability to leverage federal dollars related to the federal trust responsibility or income generated from growing tribal enterprises. When tribal governments are able to serve tribal members that may mean the State or local government has some resources freed up that would otherwise have to be dedicated to serving these Oregonians. As an example, for every Tribe that builds a health or dental clinic and is willing to serve tribal and non-tribal members, the State or local government may be able to avoid building their own facility.

Thinking about initiating or improving relations with Tribal governments? Here's the basis of the Oregon Approach which may provide some guidance and a Partial Checklist for Developing and Maintaining the Local Government-Tribal government –to-government Relationship:

The Oregon Approach encourages state agencies to go on "automatic pilot"—in essence, to ask before adopting a new policy or implementing a new program: Will this agency action affect the interests of tribal government. Should we talk with the appropriate tribal government(s)? When and How?

*Is there value to your constituents (non-tribal and tribal) within your jurisdiction in seeing if there are ways to partner with Tribal governments or to at least stay informed about each other's actions that may have an impact on the other; i.e., to communicate before there is a local government-tribal government "crisis."?

*Do you need a guiding document to start e.g., an MOU, resolution (city and Tribal Council?) committing to building a two-way relationship?

*Do you know the appropriate Tribes you should consider dealing with (i.e., your city/county may be the traditional lands, ceded lands, Congressionally-acknowledged service area of a Tribe whose current government headquarters may be located outside your local government boundaries? Is there more than one Tribal government you should be interacting with given your location? (LCIS Executive Director can assist)

*Do you know the tribal government structure—who you and your staff should be dealing with? (LCIS Director can assist)

*Do you have a key contact in your government who will be the point person for tribal issues? Does this individual have regular communication to brief you and/or assist local government staff in working effectively with local tribal government(s)?

*Would there be any advantages to invite tribal participation when you fill advisory Boards, Commission seats, or when you are planning a local, state, regional or national conference?

*Have you visited the tribal governing Board, toured the reservation, extending a reciprocal invitation to Tribal Leaders and key tribal staff?

*Have you considered “interest based self-assessment” for your local government and considered having a discussion with appropriate tribal governments about any interest-based assessment they may want to share?

*Have you considered having a conversation about the most appropriate way to establish and maintain on-going communication with the Tribal government (quarterly government-to-government meetings? Semi-annual? Annual? Leadership level? Program staff level?)

*Do you check the tribal government’s website, tribal newspaper, have other ways to keep current, e.g., whether they have had elections and their elected officials have changed?

*Keep in mind that each tribal government is distinct and your experience with one will not necessarily translate into the same type of experience as you may have with another. And, like state and local governments that change priorities potentially every election cycle, so too, may tribal governments with changes in their elected officials.

*Consider the potential advantage of maintaining a positive relationship and effective communication with your tribal government neighbors who have been here for thousands of years and are not going anywhere.

TRIBAL SOVEREIGNTY AND THE FEDERAL TRUST RELATIONSHIP

Indian Tribes represent unique legal entities in the United States. Tribes are distinct political communities with extensive powers of self-government. Tribal sovereignty predates the United States and the United States Constitution considers Indian Tribes as separate governments. Except as limited by federal law, Indian Tribes can legislate on matters of tribal concern and they can adjudicate civil and criminal matters under their laws. They have the authority to levy taxes and to regulate land uses. Many Tribes have extensive water rights, as well as hunting and fishing rights, both within and outside reservation boundaries. Unlike the Federal Government, most states do not have legal jurisdiction over Indian Tribes or their lands.

Indian treaties, federal statutes, and executive agreements over the past 200 years have established a special trust relationship between Tribes and the Federal Government. Since Indian Tribes owned their lands, legal agreements were necessary for the United States to acquire legal title. By treaty, many Tribes ceded almost all of their lands to the Federal Government. In return, Tribes retained small parcels as reservations, and they received promises of federal protection for their lands, resources and people. These promises are collectively called "trust responsibilities."

Most executive authority for administering the Indian trust responsibilities has been delegated to the Secretary of the Interior. In turn, the Secretary has designated the Bureau of Indian Affairs as the primary agency within the Department of Interior to protect tribal interests.

During the 1950s, in a move to assimilate Indians into mainstream white America, the United States Government ended federal trusteeship of roughly three percent of the country's Indian population through a process called termination. Of the 109 Tribes and bands terminated, 64 of them are native to Oregon. Even though the tone of the termination legislation was emancipation, the net effect of the policy on terminated Tribes was devastation culturally, politically and economically.

In recent years, however, vigorous efforts have been mounted by terminated Tribes to reestablish or restore the trust relationship. In 1977, the Confederated Tribes of Siletz won restoration, followed by the Cow Creek Band of Umpqua Indians in late 1982, the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde Community in November 1983, the Confederated Tribes of Coos, Lower Umpqua and Siuslaw Indians in 1984, the Klamath Tribes in 1986, and the Coquille Indian Tribe in 1989.

Oregon now has nine federally recognized Tribes: the Burns Paiute Tribe, Confederated Tribes of Coos, Lower Umpqua and Siuslaw Indians, Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde Community, Confederated Tribes of Siletz, Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation, Cow Creek Band of Umpqua Indians, Klamath Tribes, and the Coquille Indian Tribe.

INTERNAL ORGANIZATIONS

Tribal diversity notwithstanding, all Indians have concerns, which they share with one another. A number of intertribal organizations have been formed to address these issues and present a unified stand on them.

On the regional level, for example, the Columbia River Inter-tribal Fish Commission represents Tribes in Washington, Oregon and Idaho on matters concerning fisheries management. Another example is the Affiliated Tribes of Northwest Indians. This organization provides assistance to Pacific Northwest Tribes on numerous vital issues ranging from health to natural resources. Promoting economic development for all Indians in Oregon and Washington is the goal of the Native American Business Alliance.

On the statewide level, many intertribal organizations have been formed that are devoted to specific issues such as education, health, legal matters, aging, alcoholism and adoption, to name a few. Others, whose missions are of a multi-purpose nature, provide general assistance in the form of access to services and opportunities for Indians.

Because there is such a pressing need for information on available services for Indians, the Legislative Commission on Indian Services has made one of its major tasks the development of a resource guide for Indians. This Directory is intended to be a comprehensive listing of organizations, programs, and services of and for Native Americans in Oregon. Obviously, it does not include all resources within the state for which Indian people may be eligible, and some listings that should be included may have been inadvertently omitted. However, with constant vigilance of Oregon's Indian communities, the editors are confident that this Directory will continue to be the best of its kind available.

INDIAN ANCESTRY AND TRIBAL BENEFITS: WHO IS ELIGIBLE?

People often assume that being part Indian automatically entitles them to federal benefits. This is a misconception shared by Indians and non-Indians alike. Generally speaking, disbursements made to Indians represent income from the following sources:

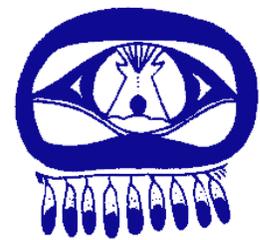

1. An individual's share of tribal money from a compensation decision made by the Indian Claims Commission;
2. Property owned by an Indian that has been collected for him by an agent of the Federal Government;
3. A tribal claim for payment for lands taken many years ago or in connection with more recent transactions;
4. The use of tribal timber or other reservation resource, a percentage of which is distributed among tribal members;
5. The fulfillment of treaty obligations. These funds belong either to the tribe or the individual and are held in trust by the Federal Government.

To be eligible for payments from tribal funds, a person must be a recognized member from an Indian tribe whose money is being distributed. Eligibility depends on proof of blood relationship and requires tracing this relationship to an ancestor whose name appeared on a tribal census roll. If the ancestor's tribal name is known, eligibility assistance can be obtained from the National Archives and Records Service, 8th Street and Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Washington, D.C., 20408.

If the ancestor's tribe is unknown, considerable difficulty in tracing genealogy may be encountered. A good way to begin is by locating records of birth, adoption, baptism, marriage, death or items appearing in local newspapers. Records such as these can be found in churches, the city, county or state clerk's or records office, historical societies, newspaper archives and libraries. Most librarians and genealogical researchers can assist in locating depositories of such records. Bookmobiles often provide assistance to those not having access to libraries.

If direct descent to a legally entitled member of a federally recognized tribe can be established, the tribe itself or the Bureau of Indian Affairs office which has immediate federal responsibility over it can provide the necessary membership requirements. A list of tribal governing bodies and their addresses can be obtained from the Bureau of Indian Affairs, U.S. Department of Interior, Washington, D.C., 20245.

Oregon's tribal members speak of being in this area now called Oregon "from time immemorial." Archaeological evidence from different areas of the State provides information about villages and traditional life ways dating back many thousands of years.

Tribal governments represent unique legal entities in the United States and are distinct political communities with extensive powers of self-government. Oregon Tribes are separate sovereigns with powers to protect the health, safety and welfare of their members and to govern their lands. This tribal sovereignty predates the existence of the U.S. government and the State of Oregon. Indians residing in Oregon are citizens of their Tribe and of Oregon and, since 1924 are also citizens of the United States.

Oregon's tribal population according to the 2010 U.S. census was 109,223. Close to 50 percent of the total Oregon Indian population are members of Oregon Tribes. The others are members of Tribes in other states, members of non-recognized Tribes, or those who self-identify as "American Indian" for the Census. Oregon's tribal population is about 2.8% of the total Oregon population. There are Indians in all 36 Oregon counties.

The federal Bureau of Indian Affairs, within the U.S. Department of Interior, is the primary agency with responsibility to protect tribal interests and administer trust obligations. At times the federal government has been supportive of tribal self-determination and, in other periods, has adopted policies and passed legislation having a negative impact on the ability of tribes to govern as viable sovereigns. One such policy in the 1950s was called "Termination" which was an attempt to sever federal trusteeship and support for tribal sovereignty. Of the 109 tribes and bands terminated nationwide, 62 were located in Oregon. In 1975, the federal government recognized the failure of its termination policy and passed The Indian Self Determination and Education Assistance Act which gave governments the opportunity to contract with federal agencies for services previously by the federal government. Shortly after passage, several tribes which had been terminated in the 1950s mounted efforts to restore their sovereign nations using the Indian Self Determination and Education Assistance Act and other available authority. In 1977, the Confederated Tribes of Siletz was the second tribe in the nation to achieve restoration. They were followed by the Cow Creek Band of Umpqua Tribe of Indians in 1982, the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde in 1983, the Confederated Tribes of Coos, Lower Umpqua & Siuslaw in 1984, the Klamath Tribes in 1986 and the Coquille in 1989.

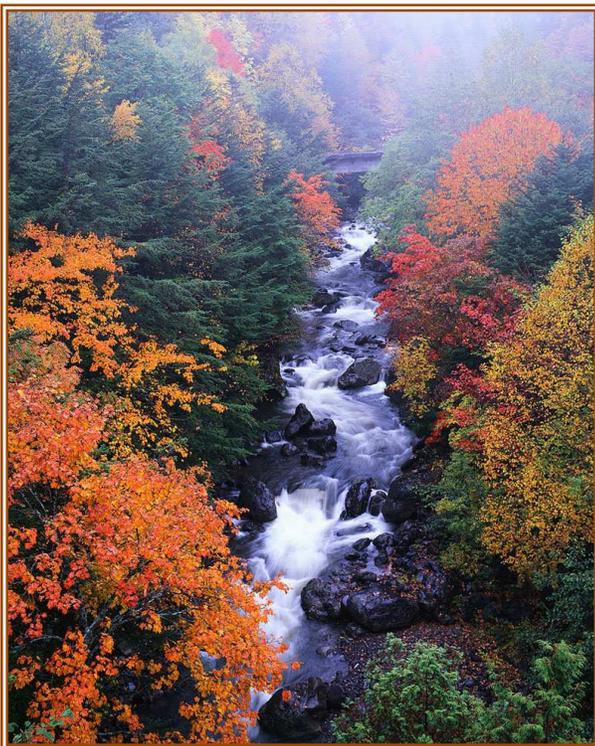

In addition to these six Tribes, there are three other federally recognized tribal governments in Oregon: the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs (Treaty of 1855), Confederated Tribes of Umatilla (Treaty of 1855) and the Burns Paiute Tribe (established by Executive Order in 1972). There are two other entities within Oregon with federal recognition: Ft. McDermitt Paiute Shoshone Tribe is a federally-recognized tribal government in Nevada with reservation lands in Oregon, and Celilo Village, a federally-recognized tribal government near The Dalles, jointly administered by the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, the Confederated Tribes of Umatilla and the Yakama Indian Nation (Washington).

All Oregon tribal governments have reservation or trust lands created by treaties or federal acts. These are lands over which tribal governments have regulatory authority unless that authority has been removed by Congress. Over 875,000 acres or 1.4% of land within Oregon's boundaries are held in trust by the federal government or are designated reservation lands. Like other sovereigns, tribal governments have the authority to decide their own "membership" or citizenship qualifications and have a right to exclude individuals from their reservation. Just as the state does not collect tax on federal lands nor tax federal or local governments or non-profit corporations, Oregon does not tax tribal governments. However, all tribal members as individual citizens pay federal taxes and most pay state taxes, with the exception of those who live and work on reservation/trust land or from trust resources.

Public Law 280 gave the state certain civil and criminal jurisdiction over tribes with the exception of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs and the Confederated Tribes of Umatilla, which are “non-Public Law 280”. Notwithstanding Public Law 280, all Oregon tribal governments have the authority to elect their own governments and adopt laws and ordinances. Oregon tribal governments have their own departments dealing with governmental services and programs in the areas of natural resources, cultural resources, education, health and human services, administration and other areas. Oregon maintains a government-to-government relationship with Oregon tribal governments as directed by ORS 182.162 to 182.168.

Passage of the National Indian Gaming Regulatory Act (NIGRA) in 1988 created the opportunity to build gaming centers on reservation or trust lands. Besides providing employment opportunities for tribal members and citizens of surrounding Oregon communities, revenues from these tribal enterprises fund health clinics, education, scholarships, housing and other services. All Oregon tribal governments are striving to diversify their revenue streams and are actively pursuing other avenues for generating revenue. These gaming and other enterprises have made these tribal governments some of the largest employers in their respective counties- generating employment for tax-paying employees. This benefits local communities and the entire state.

Most of Oregon Tribes are “confederations” of three or more tribes and bands. Each tribe’s area of interest may extend far beyond each tribal governmental center or current reservation location. The federal government acknowledges that many tribal members do not live on tribal lands and, therefore, allows for tribes to provide certain governmental programs in specified service areas. For example, the Confederated Tribes of Siletz service area includes eleven (11) Oregon counties: Benton, Clackamas, Lane, Lincoln, Linn, Marion, Multnomah, Polk, Tillamook, Washington and Yamhill.

Federal treaty arrangements and an Executive Order of June 30, 1857, established the Grand Ronde Reservation. In 1954, Congress passed the Western Oregon Indian Termination Act, which severed the trust relationship between the federal government and the Tribe. In the early 1970s, efforts began to reverse the tide of the termination. On November 22, 1983, with the signing of Public Law 98-165 by President Ronald Reagan, the Grand Ronde Restoration Act, the task was accomplished. The Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde is a federally recognized Tribe. Its more than 10,000-acre reservation is located in Yamhill County. The Tribe provides services to its members and other Indians through a variety of programs. The official governing body for the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde is the nine-member Tribal Council, elected by the general membership. Current Tribal enrollment is more than 5,200 members, a majority of whom live in Oregon. Revenues from gaming, the sale of Tribal timber and other economic development activities each year go to support programs and governmental functions. These include the Tribe's education, housing, natural resources and health and wellness services. The Tribe opened its health clinic in 1997, which provides medical and dental services to Tribal members and other Native people residing in the Grand Ronde community. The Tribe also operates its own Tribal Court and Police Department.

The Tribe's largest business enterprise, Spirit Mountain Casino, is in Grand Ronde on Highway 18. Close to 70,000 square feet of gaming floor showcases the most diverse gaming options in the Northwest: Nevada-style slots, the Summit high-stakes room, blackjack, craps, roulette, poker, pai gow, keno, bingo and a large non-smoking playing area. Spirit Mountain Casino now offers more than 17,000 square feet of conference and meeting space with the 2008 opening of a state-of-the-art, 1,900-seat Events Center.

Overnight guests can stay in one of 254 rooms in Spirit Mountain Lodge (including 12 suites) and have access to two gift shops, a 24-hour mini-mart, gas station, Playworld for youth and seven food venues, including the largest buffet in Oregon. Spirit Mountain Casino and Lodge employ more than 1,200 people and is the largest employer in Polk County.

The Tribal Governance Center was completed in November 1998 and houses offices of Tribal Council, Administration, Human Resources, Public Affairs, Publications/Smoke Signals, Member Services, Tribal Court and Legal. 2002 marked the completion of the Tribal education complex: Adult Education/Library building, Head Start/Preschool, Youth Education and the Gymnasium.

The Grand Ronde Tribal Housing Authority, established in 1996, has completed four Tribal housing developments: Grand Meadows, a manufactured home park; a 38-unit Elder housing complex; a 72-unit low income/family complex and a 36-unit market rate housing project. A 20-unit apartment complex is being constructed in 2014.

The Tribe also constructed a plankhouse, Achaf-hammi, in 2010 off Hebo Road near its Uyxat Powwow Grounds and Fort Yamhill State Park, and renovated the former Willamina Middle School building on Grand Ronde Road into the Chachalu Tribal Museum & Cultural Center, which opened in 2014.

Services are provided to Tribal members in an 11-county service area that includes Lincoln, Tillamook, Linn, Benton, Lane, Yamhill, Polk, Marion, Multnomah, Clackamas and Washington.

The Confederated Tribes of Siletz (a confederation of twenty-four bands originally ranging from Northern California to Southern Washington) is a federally recognized Tribe with a 3,987 acre reservation located in Lincoln County, of which 250 acres were newly acquired in 1994 through legislation. In November 1977 the Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians, which had been terminated in 1955, were the second Tribe in the United States and the first in Oregon to be restored. The Tribe is proud to be one of the twenty-three Tribes in the United States to have become part of the Self-Governance Demonstration Project. Committed to the improvement of the Tribe as a whole, the nine-member governing Tribal Council has been innovative in exploring options to produce revenue and provide services.

The Siletz Tribal Business Corporation operates under a Board of Directors to promote the growth of Tribal enterprises and the development and utilization of reservation resources.

Services are provided to Tribal members in an eleven county service area that includes Lincoln, Tillamook, Linn, Benton, Lane, Yamhill, Polk, Marion, Multnomah, Clackamas and Washington.

The Siletz Tribe has three area offices located in Portland, Salem and Springfield, which provide a variety of programs for Tribal members and other Indians living within their service areas.

Each office also has outreach services provided by Siletz area program staff: Office Programs include:

- Adult Education/Higher Education
- Cultural/Library
- Elders Program
- Head Start
- Housing Assistance

Majestically overlooking the Pacific Ocean from the Lincoln City shore, the 157,000 square foot Chinook Winds Casino Resort is Oregon's premier Casino. Owned and operated by the Confederated tribes of Siletz Indians of Oregon, the spirit of the Tribe is captured in the décor of the facility. Chinook Winds Casino Resort opened in 1995.

The Casino includes a waterfall flowing to a pond (designed to resemble Euchre Creek, an important area to the Siletz tribe) where "wishers" can toss their coins for good luck and make a contribution to the Tribe's educational fund. The round lobby and weave design painted on the exterior give tribute to the tribe's traditional basket weaving techniques. Salmon, a fish that plays a special and important role in the history of the tribe, decorates many of the interior and exterior areas.

The casino is a Las Vegas –style facility with more than 1,100 slot machines, along with keno, bingo, craps, roulette, blackjack and poker. The convention center has 37,000 square feet of meeting space. The "Concerts by the Sea" showroom seats more than 1,300 people and features monthly headline acts.

The resort features a 227 room hotel; all rooms overlook the Pacific Ocean. The hotel features 61 suites, an indoor heated pool, saunas, and hot tub. The hotel adds an additional 7,000 square feet of meeting space.

Rounding out the resort is an 18 hole golf course, complete with indoor driving range and very equipped fitness center.

Chinook Winds Casino Resort is host to five dining venues. The Rogue River Steakhouse features casual fine dining with a stunning panoramic ocean view. There is after-hours entertainment in the Rogue Lounge. The Siletz Bay Buffet serves breakfast, lunch, dinner and a seafood buffet on Fridays. At the deli, tucked behind the waterfall, you'll find burgers, clam strips, and more served 24/7. The Chinook Grill located at the Hotel has another breathtaking view of the ocean and features fresh sea food. Finally, Aces, located at the golf course, this sports themed restaurant features two unique attractions. A high definition golf simulator where you swing your own clubs and play some of the most famous course in the world and a hamburger that if you finish it in the allotted time, it's free.

To serve families, the resort includes a Play Palace with secure, supervised childcare available for up to four hours. Pagers are given to parents visiting the casino. A casino visit is not necessary to use the childcare facilities. The childcare facility also offers a "party room" to host themed birthday parties for up to 14 children. For adults and children, the Games Galore Arcade offers the latest arcade games, air hockey, pool, and pinball; more than 80 games in over 4,000 square feet of space.

Visitors can also enjoy the addition of alcohol service on the gaming floor. As always free parking and free sodas and coffee are a staple service provided by the resort.

The Coquille Indian Tribe became a federally restored Tribe on June 28, 1989. The Tribe provides services to its members residing in a five county service area consisting of Coos, Curry, Douglas, Jackson and Lane counties. Tribal membership consists of about 1,000 Tribal members, less those who have passed over to historic rolls. The Coquille Indian Tribe has approximately 6,450 acres of land in trust. Of this, 5,400 acres is Forest Stewardship Council (FSC) – certified timberland located near Bridge, Oregon, which is managed by the Tribe under an Indian Self Determination Compact with the Bureau of Indian Affairs for economic and cultural development. Assistance Service Programs offered to Tribal members include: Housing, Adult Education, Higher Education, Vocational Training, Head Start, Tribal Court, Cultural Programs, Elders Programs, Enrollment, General Assistance, Housing Improvement Program, Social Services, Certified Health Clinic, Community Center, and Coquille Economic Development Corporation (CEDCO).

Since federal recognition in December 1982, the Cow Creeks have focused on promoting self-sufficiency for the Tribe and its members. Their most difficult obstacle was opposition by the Bureau of Indian Affairs in their endeavors to force the Tribe into a per capita distribution of a small judgment fund settlement that has been used very effectively to springboard economic development that provides for health, housing and education opportunities for tribal members. Another difficult task has been educating the general public, including county and state governments, of the inherent sovereign rights and status of Tribal governments, as provided for in the US Constitution.

The Cow Creeks signed the first gaming compact with the State of Oregon in 1992, and have proven a valuable asset to Southern Oregon. The Cow Creeks operate the Seven Feathers Hotel and Casino Resort in Canyonville, Oregon. The facility includes Nevada-style casino gaming, a 450 seat bingo hall, gift shop, twenty-four hour restaurant, lounge, sports bar, fine dining room, and other amenities. The 1500 seat Umpqua Grand Ballroom and Convention Center has hosted concerts, boxing and other area events. The adjoining four-star, 156-room Seven Feathers Hotel offers an experience in elegance and taste comparable to the finest west coast hotels. An indoor/outdoor swimming pool and fitness center is extremely popular with guests. Another dimension of

The Tribal Government Office in Roseburg houses the Gaming Commission, the Tribe-owned Nesika Health Group Insurance Company, and a health clinic with two doctors, two nurse practitioners, a dietician, phlebotomist, and a contract podiatrist.

The Tribe has proven to be a significant factor in employment in Southern Oregon, currently employing over 1100 people, becoming the second largest employer in Douglas County. The Cow Creeks have focused on business diversification by investing casino profits to purchase businesses such as the Seven Feathers Truck and Travel Center, three motels, a graphic design business, a telecommunication business, and a meat-processing business that primarily produces beef jerky. The Tribe also purchased a large beef/hay ranching operation. In addition, Cow Creek has purchased property located on Interstate 5. (Note: All acquired lands of the Tribe have been by purchase.) A primary goal of Cow Creek is to "help people help themselves." The Tribe continually invests in educational, social, health-oriented, and charitable programs for the Tribe and local community. The seven county service areas includes: Douglas, Jackson, Josephine, Coos, Deschutes, Lane and Klamath. Services include: housing, education and healthcare.

The Klamath Tribes are composed of three distinct tribes, the Klamath, Modoc, and Yahooskin Band of Snake Indians. The Klamath Tribes, the largest subjected to the Termination policies of the 1950s, won restoration status in August 1986. However, even since 1975, the Klamath Tribes have maintained a fully functional government. Organized in accordance with its Constitution and bylaws, the Tribes' governmental base is the General Council which consists of all enrolled members age 18 and older.

(The Klamath Tribes have maintained tribal enrollment although the BIA rolls were closed under PL 587 in 1954). Under the General Council's authority, the Tribal Council is the day-to-day governing body for the Tribes. Members of the General Council democratically elect the Tribal Council, including the Tribal Chairman, every three years. Under the authority of the General Council, the Klamath Tribes have entered into a series of cooperative management agreements with federal and state agencies in order to protect and enhance the natural resources of the former reservation, and provide services and employment for some of its members. On June 27, 1997, Kla-Mo-Ya Casino opened. Note: Individual departments can be reached directly at the numbers listed below:

The Northwest Region was created by an Act of Congress in 1946. It is under the general administrative supervision of the Regional Director, who provides overall leadership, direction, and technical assistance in the implementation of Bureau programs operated for the benefit of tribes and individual Indians at fifteen (15) agencies and field stations located in the states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, and southeastern Alaska. There are approximately 94,150 Indian people of forty five (45) federally recognized tribes living on or near reservations, which exceed five (5) million acres in total size. The primary commercial quality natural resources include nearly 2.66 million acres of timberland and 165,000 acres of woodlands, over 4.8 million acres of Indian trust land, and a broad variety of commercial anadromous fish, shellfish, and other types of seafood harvested in both fresh and salt water.

Since time immemorial, the tribes of the Columbia Basin have enjoyed and exercised the right to harvest fish in their homelands. They managed this resource, along with the other natural resources upon which they depended, using traditional wisdom and knowledge passed down for generations. The 1855 treaties between the United States and the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation, the Confederated Tribes of the Warm Springs Reservation of Oregon, the Confederated Tribes and Bands of the Yakama Nation, and the Nez Perce Tribe reserved and guaranteed this right. Each of the treaties contained provisions securing the right of the tribes to continue to take fish both on their reservations and at all usual and accustomed fishing places. These four treaty tribes joined forces to create the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission in 1977. It was established to provide coordination and technical assistance to the tribes in regional, national, and international efforts to ensure that treaty fishing rights issues are resolved in a way that guarantees the continuation and restoration of tribal fisheries into perpetuity.

The Educational Opportunities Program (EOP) provides a welcoming environment that supports the full development of the personal and academic potential of students who have traditionally been denied equal access to higher education.

The program was created at Oregon State University in 1969 and provides support to students of color, students with disabilities, students who are single parents, low-income students, students who have been rurally isolated, veterans, older-than-average (25+), or 1st generation in college (neither parent graduated).

EOP started out with 48 students in 1969, and now has over 400 students. Our graduates have achieved positions benefiting their community, including judges, lawyers, doctors, college professors, business owners, counselors, social workers, teachers, and the list goes on and on.

Commission Assistant: dianna.brainardking@state.or.us

Website: <https://www.oregonlegislature.gov/cis/>

The Legislative Commission on Indian Services is a thirteen member advisory board appointed by the Oregon Senate President and Speaker of the House. Commission members are representatives of Oregon's nine federally recognized Tribes, two state legislators and two Indians representing Oregon's large non-reservation population in the Portland Urban area and the Willamette Valley area. Terms are for two years. Responsibilities of The Commission on Indian Services (CIS) include compiling information on services available to Indians, assessing State programs and services, and making recommendations for improvement. CIS serves as the state's forum in which Indian problems and solutions are considered. By state law CIS advises on matters relating to the preservation and protection of Indian historic and archaeological resources. Under Oregon's State/Tribal relations law, CIS is consulted on state agency training and reviews agency action with regard to state/tribal relations. CIS also advises on matters relating to the preservation and protection of Indian fish, wildlife, historic, and archaeological resources in hydro development. The CIS serves the public, Oregon Indians, organizations and tribes, federal, state and local agencies and offices, private and public interest groups and other organizations, as well as government officials, schools, and universities. CIS provides information on Indians, Indian programs and services as well as State programs and services for Oregon's Indian population. This is done through presentations, publication of a biennial Indian resources directory, and through CIS sponsored (or with CIS participation in) special meetings, conferences, seminars, training sessions and workshops. In addition, CIS assesses Indian needs and concerns and State programs and services delivery to Indian through consultation and public hearings. CIS reports on Indian issues to the Governor, Legislature and agencies through a biennial report and participation in the legislative and administrative review processes and by means of on-going telephone and in-person consultations. CIS has a two-person staff: Executive Director and Commission Assistant.

MOTHER EARTH'S CHILDREN is an American Indian/Alaska Native theater group, an American Indian/Alaska Native student scholarship source, and a fiscal agent for the cooperative South Coast Indian Education Summer Camp.

MOTHER EARTH'S CHILDREN began as a way to visually interpret traditional American Indian stories. When traditional storytellers discovered that many of the students in area public schools could not visualize the actions of the traditional stories, a need was identified and an answer was found in the local American Indian/Alaska Native people who jumped in to help form the new group as its "actors".

INDIAN EDUCATION PROGRAMS

Title VII Projects

Title VII Indian Education programs are funded through the Indian Education Act which was instituted in 1972 in recognition of the special educational and culturally related academic needs of Indian and Alaskan Native students. The Office of Education, U.S. Department of Education, administers programs funded by the Act. Grants are made through the department's Office of Indian Education to local educational agencies, tribal and Indian controlled schools, state educational agencies, institutions of higher education and Indian tribes, organizations and institutions. Grants are awarded on an entitlement or a competitive basis. These grant-funded projects are designed to improve educational opportunities for Indians and Alaskan Natives and to support the goal of self-determination for Indian communities. An elected parent committee in each school district helps identify those needs and how to best meet them. Part A grants support tribal or Indian-controlled schools or local educational agency projects for elementary and secondary students. Projects funded under Part B include early childhood classes, curriculum development, remedial and enrichment instruction and cultural presentations. Part C awards grants for adult education projects offering components such as life coping skills, ABE/GED preparation and career education.

Johnson O'Malley Programs

The purpose of the Johnson-O'Malley (JOM) program is to meet specialized and unique educational needs of Indian children attending public and some Tribal schools through the use of supplemental education programs. Such supplemental programs are designed at the local level under the purview of a local Indian Education Committee. Eligible JOM contract applicants are states, school districts, tribes, tribal organizations and previously private schools. Beneficiaries are children who are enrolled members of, or at least one-fourth or more degree of Indian blood descendant of a member of a federally recognized Indian tribal government eligible for service by the Bureau, and are between age 3 through grade 12 with priority given to those residing on or near Indian reservations.
