Title VII Projects

Title VII Indian Education programs are funded through the Indian Education Act which was instituted in 1972 in recognition of the special educational and culturally related academic needs of Indian and Alaskan Native students. The Office of Education, U.S. Department of Education, administers programs funded by the Act. Grants are made through the department's Office of Indian Education to local educational agencies, tribal and Indian controlled schools, state educational agencies, institutions of higher education and Indian tribes, organizations and institutions. Grants are awarded on an entitlement or a competitive basis. These grant-funded projects are designed to improve educational opportunities for Indians and Alaskan Natives and to support the goal of self-determination for Indian communities. An elected parent committee in each school district helps identify those needs and how to best meet them. Part A grants support tribal or Indian-controlled schools or local educational agency projects for elementary and secondary students. Projects funded under Part B include early childhood classes, curriculum development, remedial and enrichment instruction and cultural presentations. Part C awards grants for adult education projects offering components such as life coping skills, ABE/GED preparation and career education.

Johnson O'Malley Programs

JOM programs are funded through the Bureau of Indian Affairs to supplement education services. Indian children from age three through grade twelve, who are at least one-quarter Indian and from a federally recognized Tribe, are eligible for JOM services. JOM programs provide financial assistance for education-related services, leadership development and cultural activities.

Title VII and JOM programs differ in the eligibility requirements: JOM programs serve students from federally recognized tribes for the purpose of supplemental educational activities. Title VII programs serve students primarily in urban areas. Blood degree or federal status of the Tribe is not considered in determining eligibility. The following Indian Education Programs are listed alphabetically by cities in which they are located.
