SALEM – “The numbers show that Oregon’s economy continues to improve slowly but surely. The question for the legislature in the upcoming session is, how are we going to ensure that the economic situation improves for small businesses and working families in every part of the state?”

“Despite the recovery, too many working families can’t even make ends meet, even though they’re working harder than ever. If we’re going to improve the lives of everyone in the state and build a prosperous future, we’ve got to continue to focus on investing in our schools, making college more affordable, expanding career training opportunities, and supporting our small businesses. House Democrats have a strong team in place ready to continue the work toward all of those goals.”
