Oregon to receive sixth congressional district

Emphasizes the need for a fair redistricting process that avoids political gerrymandering

SALEM, Ore. – House Republican Leader Christine Drahan (R-Canby) today responded to confirmation that Oregon will have a sixth congressional district.

The news highlights the importance of equal representation on the House Redistricting Committee which currently has three Republicans and three Democrats.

“Now that we have equal representation on the redistricting committee, our legislative and congressional districts will be drawn in a way that avoids political gerrymandering,” said Leader Drahan. “Our current maps have favored one political party over another for the past 20 years, but Oregonians can be confident that this sixth congressional district will be drawn according to the rules to give people fair representation.”
