House Republican Leader Statement on Revenue Forecast

Salem, ORE. – Today, House Republican Leader Christine Drazan (R-Canby) released a statement on the revenue forecast:

“It’s clear that the federal stimulus is working to sustain families and businesses, and by extension, state revenues in the short term. This is encouraging news, but long term is another story as more than 150,000 Oregonians look for work and families and communities across the state are just beginning the difficult process of rebuilding and recovering from devastating wildfire losses.

Rural Oregonians are still suffering disproportionately, as are women and those in starting wage jobs that lost so much with the shutdown orders. We must oppose higher taxes and come together to advance policies that support full economic recovery for all Oregonians.”
