Speaker Rayfield Releases Statement on Stable December Revenue Forecast

SALEM, Ore. – Today, Oregon House Speaker Dan Rayfield (D-Corvallis) issued the following statement on the December Revenue Forecast released this morning by the Oregon Office of Economic Analysis:

“We continue to see an encouraging pattern of stable revenue forecasts. This stability is the key to developing legislation to address critical issues like access to mental health and addiction treatment, affordable housing, and sustainable childcare funding to enact during the February Legislative Session.

“However, it’s essential to Oregon families—many of whom continue to need relief from rising costs despite the promising figures we saw today—that we remain measured in our commitments given that the long-term forecast anticipates that population and migration rates will level out. Oregonians are counting on us to be wise with our investments and ensure we see intended results.”
