“Rules are basically protectoral and purposeful and not mere fluff. They reflect the observance of mutual respect and consideration for each other in an atmosphere of courtesy and friendliness. It is this behavior that is most favorable to achievement, to understanding and cooperation.”

PROTOCOL & DECORUM

CONVENING  The clerk will begin the roll call promptly at the time set for convening. Chimes will ring five minutes before session throughout each floor of the Senate Wing to alert Senators to attend.

ORDERS OF BUSINESS  The Orders of Business for each floor session follow a precise order. (See a list of Orders of Business on page 20).

ALWAYS ON CAMERA  Remember you are always on camera in the Chamber. Actions and conversations may be recorded. The Senate floor sessions are recorded and broadcast live in the Capitol and on the Internet.

QUIET CONVERSATION  Please be mindful of fellow Senators as they give floor speeches. Please carry on conversations quietly at your desk or at the back of the Chamber.

THIRD READING LIST  The daily “Third Reading List” is posted online and is emailed to each Senate office. This list is prepared before each session, enabling you to know the specific bills up for a vote during session.
WALKING IN THE CHAMBER  Only Senators, the Secretary of the Senate, or staff acting under the direction of the Secretary, may walk in the center aisle or “T” that runs the length of the floor in front of the rostrum. Members may access the rostrum to speak with the President. Staff should enter the Chamber from the back side aisles and proceed to a member's desk by walking down the aisles between desks. As required by rule, no one should walk between a Senator who is speaking and the President at the rostrum.

ACCESS TO THE CHAMBER FLOOR  All 90 members of the Legislature, as well as Senate desk and floor personnel, may access the Senate floor. Members’ staff, caucus staff, presiding officer’s staff, certain committee staff and authorized guests are permitted as well. Lobbyists are prohibited on the Senate floor, side aisles, and adjacent areas during session.
WHERE TO SIT  There are two chairs at each desk. The chair with arms is for the member’s use only.

FLOOR DESKS  Your floor desk is your personal space during the session. Additional staff or guests may be seated in the side aisle or gallery. The Chamber is cordoned off when session is out, but the desks remain unlocked. Do not leave anything confidential or valuable at your Chamber desk.

LEAVING DURING SESSION  You may leave the Chamber for short periods of time as long as the body is not under a “Call of the Senate,” in which case all Senators must remain present. Before leaving the floor it is customary to notify the Secretary of the Senate, or Desk Staff, and your caucus personnel.

BEFORE AND AFTER SESSION  The side aisles and double center doors are closed for fifteen minutes before and after session. During this period, all rules of protocol are observed as if the Senate is in session. During a recess, the doors remain closed and access rules prevail as during session.
FOOD AND WATER  Only water is permitted in the Chamber.

CELLPHONES AND LAPTOPS  Cellphone calls should only be made in the phone booths at the back of the Chamber. Phone booths are for members only. Laptops are permitted for members and staff. No device should make an audible noise in the Chamber.

HOUSE FLOOR SESSIONS  A television is located in the Hannon Reading Room directly off the Chamber to enable observation of House proceedings. A House Third Reading List is available next to the television.

INVOCATION  The invocation is given daily during session. Please do not enter the Chamber during the invocation. If you would like to give the invocation or would like to recommend someone, please contact the Reading & Journal Clerk (Ext. 6-1853).
COURTESIES AND GUESTS  Guests may be introduced under the order of “Courtesies.” It is customary to wait until debate and voting on a bill is completed before asking for permission to return to the order of Courtesies. Any guest on the floor or in the side aisle cannot be currently advocating for or against particular legislation. When introducing a guest with access to the floor or side aisle, a member should not indicate any issue the guest supports or opposes. Guests on the floor should not wear or display visible indications supporting or opposing any issue or legislation. Signs are prohibited at all times anywhere in the Chamber.

REMONSTRANCES  Remonstrances have a two-minute time limit (no yields). A member may only speak one time per floor session under Remonstrances. Under this order of business, a member may voice objections, observations, or “protests.” The motives or integrity of another member of the Senate or House may not be impugned.

VISUAL AIDS & READING FROM WRITTEN MATERIAL  A member must ask for unanimous consent to use a visual aid. By contrast, a member may read from written material without first asking for permission. Another member may object to what is being read. If an objection is made, the matter will be put to an immediate vote.
SCRIPTS When you have a speaking part in a floor session, the Secretary of the Senate’s staff prepares the script and places it on your Chamber desk. If you would like an additional script beforehand, please contact the Secretary of the Senate.

ADDRESSING A MEMBER Simply use the title of “Senator” only or “the Senator from [district number or other description provided on the reference list at your desk]” to address a member. For example, say “the Senator from District 23” or “the Senator from Baker County.” Do not use the Senator’s name. This rule helps maintain decorum during debate.

QUESTION OF THE CARRIER If you have a question for the carrier of a bill, press your button to be recognized by the President. When recognized, tell the President you have a “Question for the Carrier.” The President will then ask if the carrier will answer a question. The question should then be addressed to the President, not the carrier. Likewise, the answer to the question should be addressed to the President, not the member who asked the question. This rule helps maintain decorum during debate.

“The most precious thing in the world is friendship.”
- Cecil L. Edwards
DECLARING A CONFLICT OF INTEREST  You should declare the conflict of interest before you vote. You only need to announce the conflict one time per floor session or committee meeting if multiple votes are taken on the issue that day. Ask to be recognized during debate and before the closing statement. If you forget to declare a conflict of interest and the vote has been taken, you can ask for unanimous consent to declare your conflict after the vote. When declaring a conflict, please remember to state the nature of the conflict.

“We did have some controversies.... But they were handled without too much fuss, and nothing was embarrassing for the Senate.”
- Maribel Cadmus
VOTING  Votes are taken orally in the Senate. To vote, members must be “within the bar” and outside the telephone booths. Please audibly respond when your name is called and check the display boards to ensure your vote is recorded correctly.

VOTE EXPLANATION  For any roll call vote, members may give an oral vote explanation, a written vote explanation, or both. For an oral vote explanation, immediately after the result of the vote is announced, press the button at your desk and, when recognized, ask to provide your vote explanation. Your vote explanation may not be longer than two minutes. Written vote explanations must be submitted to the Secretary of the Senate by 5:00 p.m. on the next session day after the vote. It is helpful if they are submitted electronically. Only written vote explanations are recorded in the Journal.

VOTE COUNTS  Vote counts are available at the rostrum after each roll call vote.

“The process works, which I think shows how important it is.”

CHANGING YOUR VOTE  Before the gavel has fallen you may change your vote. Please promptly notify the Secretary. If the gavel has fallen and the vote is over, then before adjournment you must ask for unanimous consent to change your vote and state whether your change will affect the outcome.

IF YOU MISS A VOTE  If you are absent or excused when a vote is taken, you may ask, before adjournment, for unanimous consent to record your vote. When you ask for unanimous consent, please state whether your vote will affect the outcome.

“Rules should be designed to make it possible for members of the assembly to express themselves fully to try to sway each other and to vote as equals when a time for decision is reached.”
~ Cecil L. Edwards
RECONSIDERATION  A motion to reconsider asks the body to undo a previous action. If the motion to reconsider carries, the original question is back in front of the body as if the previous action never occurred. If the motion to reconsider fails, the previous action stands. The body may be asked to reconsider a vote only once. To move for reconsideration, you must have voted on the prevailing side on the previous action. For example, if a bill fails, you must have voted “no” in order to move for reconsideration. Often, a member will need to change their vote to be on the prevailing side to move for reconsideration. If possible, you should change your vote before the gavel falls. Otherwise, you will need to ask for unanimous consent to change your vote after the gavel has fallen. After the gavel falls and the result of the vote is announced, you should then give notice of possible reconsideration. After giving notice you may then move to reconsider. (For details, see pages 17 and 18).

“One of the first things I think that a legislator has to keep in mind is that for a bill to pass there needs to be consensus and compromise, and one way to do that is to get to know the members and to establish relationships with them so that a compromise and consensus can come about.”

~ Maribel Cadmus

Senator: I move that SB/HB___ be withdrawn from the Committee on__________.

President: (Repeats motion.)

Senator: (Explains motion.)

Reference ~ Mason’s Section 491(4)

It is not in order to discuss the merits of a bill upon a motion to . . . withdraw the bill from committee. Debate in such cases must be confined strictly to the purpose of the motion, for if this were not true, the merits of any question could be forced under discussion merely by such a motion to withdraw.

President: Is there any further discussion? If not, Senator______, do you wish to close?

~

NOTE: A constitutional majority (16) is required to withdraw a bill from committee. As a matter of courtesy, it is customary to notify the Presiding Officer at the beginning of session before the motion is made to ensure that it is handled appropriately.
